1 Turning Plastic Waste into Creative Art

2 Parent-Teacher Conference 2026

3 UUMISM Student Declan Ooi Crowned Overall Champion in Sabah

TURNING PLASTIC WASTE INTO CREATIVE ART

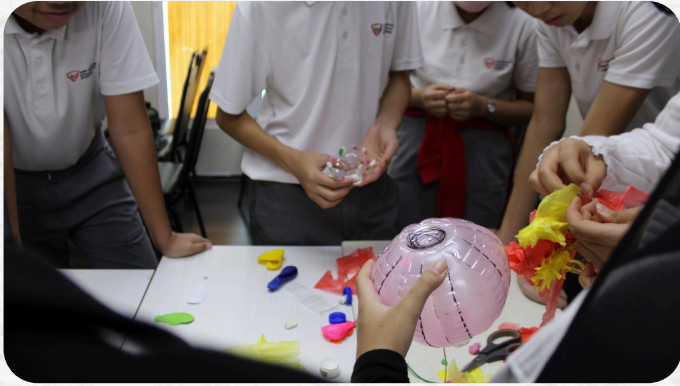

Manipal University is conducting research on the effects of microplastics in our environment. As part of this initiative, several activities have been organised to raise awareness about plastic pollution and encourage students to practise recycling.

The most recent activity focused on transforming used materials into creative and useful items. The students successfully created a lantern using a balloon and a used water bottle, a flower from a plastic bottle, roses from plastic bags and wire, and a dancing doll using paper, a bottle cap and playdough.

Through this hands-on activity, the students learned that discarded materials do not always have to become waste. With creativity and effort, they can be reused and turned into attractive objects. The activity was both enjoyable and educational, helping students understand the importance of recycling and protecting the environment from plastic pollution.

Fostering teamwork and creative thinking
